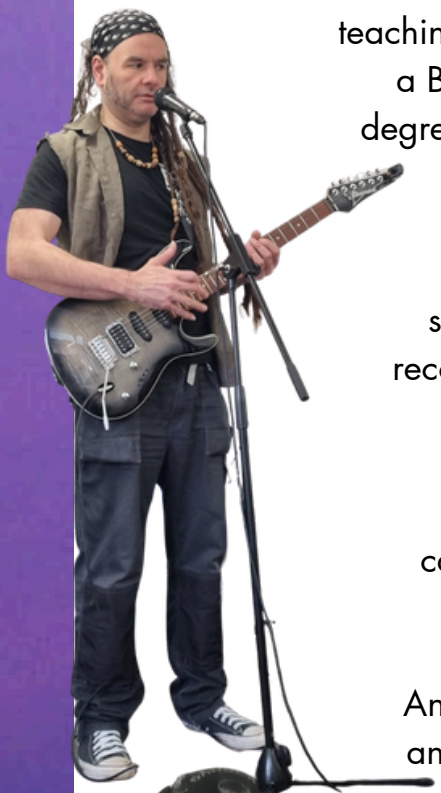
Andy Hignett
Guitar and Bass tutor
Rockworks Director



Andy has been playing guitar for 35 years and has been teaching guitar (electric, acoustic and bass) for 26 years. He has a BTEC ND in Popular Music, Grade 8 on Guitar, a BA Hons degree in Commercial Music Production and Journalism and an MA in Media & Politics.

He has played guitar and bass in bands and is a singer-songwriter and busker as well as a recording artist, having recorded 10 solo albums. He has toured England and Wales both busking and playing gigs.

Andy organises regular fundraising gigs for good causes around the Chester and North Wales area and also runs open mic nights and regularly attends folk clubs.

Andy was a co-founder of The Rockworks Academy in 2017 and has been teaching with them ever since, having worked with students of a variety of different ages and abilities, including students with autism and other additional needs.

Andy also enjoys plant-based cookery, weight lifting, videography, drawing and campaigns for human rights and climate justice
